The Bakery Square project is a critical catalyst in the revitalization of the East Liberty Section of Pittsburgh. The former Nabisco bakery building has been renovated and an additional five buildings have been constructed to complete this retail, office, and hotel center.

Bakery Square offers tenants an exciting lifestyle center in a densely-populated, low-income community. This environment is infused with a new urban aesthetic that integrates historic architecture with new construction.

Well-positioned to draw on the nearby, desirable and well-educated neighborhoods of the East end, Bakery Square is also close to the city’s major economic engines – the universities, medical centers, and burgeoning technology and biotechnology industries. More than 350,000 people reside within 5 miles of the site, and three of the region’s top employers are within 2 miles – UPMC Hospitals, the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Mellon University.

In addition to the $13 million NMTC investment from CCG and leverage loans, the project was funded with $3.5 million Historic Tax Credit equity.

Bakery Square development recently won the Commonwealth Award Gold Medal for “Best Mixed Use Development” in Pennsylvania.
